DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-14 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Grubsky (U.S. Patent 6,360,038 B1, submitted by applicant).

Grubsky discloses a wavelength-selective optical device for coupling light using a grating that can be tunable in wavelength by varying the periodicity of the grating (see column 3 lines 6-8, column 2 line 25). Grubsky discloses that the grating can be apodized grating (see column 2 lines 61-62). However, Grubsky does not explicitly teach that the Bragg grating has an adjusted grating period that has been increased from a nominal grating period to compensate for a Bragg wavelength shift. It is known in the art that any outside strain or temperature on the grating causes Bragg wavelength to shift left or right causing unintentional coupling loss. Since Grubsky's grating is tunable it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to recognize tuning the Bragg grating (by applying a temperature or strain gradient) to compensate for a Bragg wavelength shift in Grubsky to provide the device with improved coupling efficiency.

Art Unit: 2874

Regarding claims 4 and 10, since Grubsky's grating is tunable by changing periodicity of the grating, it appears that Grubsky's device can perform the claimed limitation. It is also noted that applicant didn't provide the critically of having such periodicity.

Conclusion

3. The prior art documents submitted by applicant have been considered and made of record (note the attached copy of form PTO-1449).

4. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Sakata (U.S. Patent 6,072,925) teaches a tunable optical coupler with a grating.
